The Referendum gives all Australians a vote on Indigenous constitutional recognition and Voice. Can it create a new platform for Australia as a whole? How can we honour the goodwill of Aboriginal people in their Uluru Statement from the Heart: "We invite you to walk with us in a movement of the Australian people for a better future"?

Sept 27– Information and Questions on the Referendum on Indigenous Constitutional Recognition and Voice

Shireen Morris, a constitutional lawyer, senior lecturer at Macquarie University and prolific writer and speaker who worked with Noel Pearson in Cape York for seven years.

Oct 4 – Sharing Our Work in Western Sydney. Could the Voice Make a Difference?

Jenny Beale, founder and CEO of Butucarbin and Jack Gibson its community development Worker, a local Aboriginal organisation providing essential services and support to the Aboriginal community.

Hear also brief statements from others in Western Sydney why the Referendum is personally important to them and to the nation.

Since 1997 Reconciliation for Western Sydney (R4WS) has been involved in fostering understanding and relationships between Indigenous people and the wider community.

Supported by Parramatta City Council and Western Sydney Community Forum
